

Wolf by Wolf

By Ryan Graudin

Discuss

Talk through your thoughts.

- Before reading, talk about what do you know about the Axis powers and the Allies during World War II? Do research or watch a WWII documentary before reading this book to help refresh your memory.
- Foreshadowing is when an author hints at what will happen later in the book. Read the paragraph that appears before chapter one. Do you believe this is an example of foreshadowing? What do you think it means?

Create

Make an experience of your own.

- This book presents an alternative history of World War II. With the help of research, create a timeline of World War II and the major events that followed. Note the date of Hitler's death.
- Do research on the experiments conducted by doctors of the Third Reich. Create a presentation of some kind (poster, power point, speech, etc.) on these experiments from Yael's perspective.

Imagine

Use your imagination to explore.

- Yael's tattoos of wolves remind her of the loved ones she lost. What else could her tattoos be symbolic of? Design your own tattoo that is symbolic for something important in your life.
- This book is written as an alternative history. Think about another major event or war, and write your own story based on alternative history.

Explore

Like this book? Find more:

- Blood for Blood by Ryan Graudin
- Walled City by Ryan Graudin
- Code of Honor by Alan Gratz

